Notice for prospective residents

Before you decide whether to live in a retirement village, you should:

- Seek independent legal advice about the retirement village contract there are different types of contracts and they can be complex
- Find out the financial commitments involved in particular, you should understand and consider ingoing costs, ongoing fees and charges (which can increase) and how much it will cost you when you leave the village permanently
- Consider any impacts to any pensions, rate subsidies and rebates you currently receive
- Consider what questions to ask the village manager before signing a contract
- Consider whether retirement village living provides the lifestyle that is right for you. Moving into a retirement village is very different to moving into a new house. It involves buying into a village with

*Note from the scheme operator:

The amounts disclosed in the table above is the full amount of the GSC payable by a resident (before any discount is applied).

As at the date of this document, the Scheme Operator derives income from a telecommunications provider for its use of part of the exterior of the building. The Scheme Operator, in its discretion, has elected to apply part of that income for the benefit of residents. This effectively reduces the amount of the GSC payable by $8.54 per week per unit (GSC Discount).

The continuation of the income stream from the telecommunications provider is not guaranteed for the duration of the resident's right to reside in the village. Also, and even if the income stream continues, the Scheme Operator, in its discretion, may determine to vary (increase or decrease) the amount of, or cease to provide, the GSC Discount. In each case, residents must pay the applicable general services charge with the GSC Discount as varied or without the GSC Discount.
